Duty to Disclose all Material Facts

We take this opportunity to remind you of your duty to disclose all material facts and the very severe potential consequences if you breach this duty. Every proposer or insured, when seeking new insurance, amending or renewing an existing policy must disclose any information which might influence the insurer in deciding whether or not to accept the risk, what the terms of the policy should be or what premium to charge.

If you fail to disclose all material facts, this may render the insurance policy void from inception (the start of the contract) and enable the insurer to repudiate liability (entitle the insurer not to pay your claims).

Examples of matters that an insurer may regard as material for all of the insurance policies we are providing quotations/indications for include:

- Any previous incidents that could have led to a claim
- Unspent or pending criminal convictions

Examples of matters that an insurer may regard as material for specific policies we are providing quotations/indications include:

- Any changes to the services offered at the location
- If any new classes are introduced
- If food or drink is being prepared/served on the premises

These are only examples and this is not meant to be an exhaustive list. If you are not sure whether a fact is material, you should disclose it. Please contact us immediately for assistance if you do not fully understand your duty of disclosure, if you are unsure whether information may be material or if it comes to your attention that you may have not disclosed full and accurate information.
